Spanish Opposition to American Mediation in Cuba.

Constitutionality of the Cotton Tax to be Tested.

Dearth of Regulations in Mexico.

Postmaster Speed and Assessors Needham and Spencer on the Black List.

[Special Telegraphic Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

CUBA.

WASHINGTON, September 21.—Dispatches have been received by mail from Minister Sickles, but the only information that the Department will let out regarding them is that nothing definite has resulted from the tender of mediation to Spain on Cuban matters. The Spanish newspapers received at the Department all oppose the proposed mediation.

TREASURY RUMORS.

Among the rumors prevailing in Treasury quarters to-day was one that the Secretary intended next week to buy bonds and pay gold for them instead of selling gold for currency and then buying bonds for currency.

THE COTTON TAX.

The Supreme Court needs here is to-day. One of the most important cases to be brought before it for decision at this term is the question of the constitutionality of the late tax on raw cotton. There are several millions of claims to be preferred against the Government for the refunding of the amount collected, provided the decision is adverse to the Government.

PARAGUAY.

Secretary Fish discredits the report that the war in Paraguay is at an end. He believes that Lopez will again rally his scattered forces and continue the struggle.

MEXICO.

Dispatches just received here from Mexico report quiet in all the States. Everything is favorable to a return of prosperity. Senor Matta, formerly Mexican Minister to this Government, is endeavoring to become the leader of the opposition. President Juarez will not be a candidate for re-election.

VIRGINIA.

A prominent Richmond Radical who arrived here denounces the New York Herald's report that an attempt would be made to prevent a session of the Virginia Legislature. He says the Legislature will no doubt meet and adopt the fifteenth amendment by an almost unanimous vote. His impression is the Conservatives will postpone an election of Senators until after Congress shall have admitted the State.

KENTUCKY OFFICES.

The Republicans in Kentucky known as the extreme wing have decided to make, through their representative here, a rally on the Kentucky office-holders. They intend to furnish a list to the President of such as are not up to the advanced position of Radicalism, and demand their removal. They say that nearly all of the office-holders refuse to indorse the 14th amendment, and utterly repudiate the 15th amendment, while those who have been in office six years must go anyway, no matter how radical they are. Assurances from the President, they declare, warrant them in hoping for complete success. Postmaster Speed, of Louisville, Assessor Needham, of the same city, and Assessor Spencer, of the Fourth Kentucky District, are on their list already for removal.

SIBERIA.

Return of the Eclipse Party—The Expedition a Failure.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—The United States steamer Mohican returned from Siberia to-night, with Professors Hall and Rogers, of the United States Naval Observatory, at Washington, who went north to observe the eclipse. The exhibition was a decided failure. The steamer arrived at Plover Bay July 30th, and anchored in Emma harbor. The astronomical party erected an observatory on Wapcum Spit, at which Prof. Rogers took his station, while Prof. Hall proceeded to Bandhead, the place selected by the observatory. The two favorable hill hour before contact, when dense clouds obscured the sun, lasting half an hour after egress, and then cleared off before.

JAPAN.

Unsettled State of the Country—Another War Probable.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—Japan private advices state that the currency is in a bad way. Many of the money is in circulation. The paper currency is at a discount. Trade is dull and business almost at a stand still.

The Mikado is still at Yeddo. Great jealousies exist among the Daimios. Another outbreak is expected before long. It is said there was a conspiracy at Kiota a few weeks ago to set up another Mikado, and their plan was nearly completed when discovered and put down. It was organized by people opposed to the Mikado's coming to Yeddo. Japan is by no means settled.

Great preparations are being made to receive the Duke of Edinburgh. Extraordinary attention on all sides will be shown him. As much of Japan as can will go to see him.

SYRACUSE.

Assembling of Delegates to the Democratic Convention—The Platform Indicated.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 21.—Nearly all the delegates to the Democratic State Convention are in the city. It is said Horatio Seymour will not take part in the proceedings. Gen. Slocum is mentioned for temporary chairman and Lieut Gov. Beach for permanent President.

The platform will be rather conservative. It will not go as far as the Ohio Democratic platform, nor will it be a copy of the Massachusetts Democracy. Its leading points will be a demand for the restoration of the Southern States, general amnesty, a fulfillment of obligations of contract with regard to the Government bonds, opposition to the proposed 15th amendment, and opposition to the amended State Constitution, excepting the article concerning the judiciary. There is a general good feeling among the delegates.

BOSTON.

Discharged—Great Loss of Life by the Gale.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The examination of Louisa W. Manor, charged with poisoning the family of Dr. Seamniss, of Lowell, resulted in her discharge.

Twenty-one persons belonging to Rockport were lost during the gale on the 8th inst. Seven bodies have been recovered and brought home and received christian burial. All were engaged in the fishing business.

RICHMOND.

Inauguration of Gov. Walker.

RICHMOND, Sept. 21.—Governor Walker was installed as provisional Governor at the Congressional Mansion to-day at noon, General Canby being present. Governor Wells turned over the office to the new incumbent who took the iron-clad and other oaths of office. There were no ceremonies and no demonstrations except the gathering of a large crowd of white and colored people to congratulate the new Governor, who shook hands with them.

CUBA.

A Voluntary Loan.

HAVANA, Sept. 21.—The Directors of the Abanis Bank have offered aid to the government for the purpose of carrying on the war to the amount of the total profits of the bank while the rebellion lasts. The directors have paid on account of such amount $30,000.

Result of the Maine Election.

AUGUSTA, ME., Sept. 21.—The entire vote of the State has been received except thirty-seven small towns and plantations. Chamberlain 50,901, Smith 38,977 and Hichborn 4,642. The Senate stands 26 Republicans to 5 Democrats, a Democratic gain of one. House 113 Republicans to 36 Democrats, with four districts to hear from. Last year the House stood: Republicans, 131; Democrats, 30.

New York Good Templars.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 21.—The Grand Lodge of Good Templars of the State assembled in Corinthian Hall to-day. About 100 delegates are in attendance. The session will occupy three days. A public meeting will be held this evening and several addresses delivered.

Impeachment.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—In the Jefferson City Common Council last night, articles of impeachment were preferred against Mayor Monroe for alleged peculation. The Mayor was also suspended. The trial commences to-morrow.

Base Ball.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The base ball match of the Mutuals against the Nationals, of Washington, was won by the Mutuals. Score 43 to 16.

MONETARY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Money active at 7 per cent. in gold on call, with brokers paying extra concessions to have stocks carried. Shipments of currency to the West have increased, but small notes bring only half per cent. premium. Exchange rates are unusually difficult at 109@15 per cent. The money market is disturbed. Gold closed strong. The bull party is sufficiently strong with the aid of the Treasury Department to force an advance, but for the impression in Exchange, which is now about low enough to bring gold from Europe.

BONDS.

Government bonds were dull and without important feature.

RAILROAD SHARES, ETC.,

opened feverish and unsettled. New York Central fluctuated between 209¾ and 199¾. Rock Island declined to 108¾ under a report that the next dividend will be only 3½ per cent. Pacific Mail touched 78¾ on confirmation of a rumored change of management. Chicago and Alton unusually active and favorable at the last Board at 168, while at the second Board it sold as low as 141¾. Northwest and Michigan Southern were active, but the heavy market caused all stocks to close dull and heavy.

THE STATE CANALS.

A convention has been called to meet in this city on the 19th of October to make an effort to secure a better management of the State canals. The corrupt practices of the late Radical State officers are strongly denounced. Leading Republicans unite in the call.

FRAUDS IN THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The Times says: "We are credibably informed that the new agent of the Methodist Book Concern, Rev. Dr. Lanahan, has discovered in that establishment great corruption and fraud, involving losses to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars. The subject is now undergoing investigation. As soon as the details can be given to the public without prejudice to any but the culpable parties they will be furnished. These frauds, it is said, have been going on for some eight or nine years, and of course their full extent is not yet ascertained with precision."

EXTENT OF THE SWINDLE.

It appears that the fraud discovered in the Methodist Book Concern consists in the alleged fact that a son of Dr. Porter, one of the agents, has received a commission for the past eight or nine years, averaging 7 per cent for purchasing printing paper for the institution. That is, the agent permitted his son, who is a paper broker, to charge a heavy commission for doing what it was the agent's duty to do himself. Report says the purchases on which commissions have been allowed, amounted to $150,000 per annum, and also that the son sold paper to the concern at rates which gave him a greater profit. Irregularities are also reported in the boarding department, but no particulars are known. A rigid investigation is progressing, and the implicated parties have been dismissed.

REDDY, THE BLACKSMITH.

Wm. Varley, alias Reddy, the blacksmith, was arraigned for trial this morning in the Court of General Sessions. The court-room was densely thronged. Complainant's evidence was Graham failing to appear, Reddy was remanded to the city prison.

THE STATE CANALS.

The commissioners appointed by the Citizens' Association, Chamber of Commerce, and Produce Exchange have called a convention of the representatives of all boards and associations throughout the State interested in the management and trade of canals to meet in New York on the 19th of October to confer for the purpose of instituting reforms in the management of canals. The commissioners of the Citizens' Association charge that the condition of the canals is deplorable, that the State's money has been fraudulently disposed of, and suggest the reform needed is to put out the officials who have been guilty of neglecting their trusts.

THE COTTON TAX.

It appears the insurance case alluded to yesterday was one where there are two claimants, the son of the first wife as heirs of their mother, and the second wife as creditor, to enjoy money gambled away in stock by a husband, who committed suicide. The Royal Insurance Company is sued by both parties, and simply declines to pay either parties until a decision is given, by the court as to which is entitled to the money.

ORDINANCE FOR THE PACIFIC.

The ship La Semble has cleared for San Francisco with 10,000 tons of ordnance, &c. for Mare Island navy yard. The Seminole, the sail soon is to take a similar freight.

FRAUDULENT PRETENSES.

Mary Ennis, who has continued to draw a pension as widow of Michael Ennis, a deceased Union soldier, although since married to Jos. King, has been held for trial.

DRUNKARD.

ENGLAND.

GEN. SICKLES AS A DIPLOMATIST.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The Paris correspondent of the Times writes as follows: "The note of the American Minister to the Spanish Government in regard to Cuba varies both in its tone and conclusions from the diplomatic communications between the Spanish Minister at Washington and the Government of the United States. The diplomatic experience of General Sickles is limited, and probably insufficient for him to rightly estimate the value and effect of his words. Doubtless he is much surprised at the excitement they have created, and it will be difficult for his Government to approve of them. No premier exists for promulgating the Cuban insurrection, which does not hold a single town or position, and owes its prolongation to the action of the climate vs the opponents and the facilities afforded to the insurgents in a thinly peopled country. The appointment of General Sickles as Minister to Spain was greatly criticised, and has not been sanctioned by the Senate. That body will do itself credit by refusing to confirm the appointment of a man who has made so bad a first appearance in diplomacy."

A letter from Madrid to the Standard says Gen. Sickles in his note intimates that the Government at Washington might under force of public opinion be compelled to recognize the Cuban insurgents. It reminds the Spanish Government of the good faith which the United States has hitherto preserved, its respect for international law and its unwillingness to embarrass Spain. After giving this intimation in so alarming nature, but the reticence of the Government allowing the people to remain in ignorance of its contents justifies the violent comments which have appeared in the Spanish papers for the past few days.

THE LATEST FROM CHINA TRADE.

The Pall Mall Gazette reviews the idea of a Chinese policy put forth by Mr. Browne, late American Minister to China. It says the sum of his argument is the opening of new markets to Christian traders. In point of fact Mr. Browne urges no concessions that he does not believe foreigners and the Chinese are reasonably questions of interpretation. A truer account would be that the former forced the Chinese to grant privileges which the latter not daring to withdraw seek to evade. The true policy for the foreigner is a defensive. Intercourse with China is no better than a series of little wars, we must be content to secure the right of trade with China by her willingness to trade with us.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.

The Pope has sent a communication to Cardinal Manning in reference to the proposal of Dr. Cummings to appear at the Ecumenical Council. The Pope refers Dr. Cummings to the terms of the letter of administration addressed to Protestants, and says he will find it to his advantage to read it in discussion, but only to profit by the opportunity to return to the church. The Pope says, in conclusion, that there is no room at the council for the defense of errors which have already been condemned.

The Times in commenting on the above says the conditions of Rome on Dr. Cummings' appearance in connection with unexpected promptitude. The Pope must have acquainted himself with the purport of Dr. Cummings' letter through the newspapers and replied before the receipt. Dr. Cummings is to be congratulated on the authoritative reply solicited. It is rather in a ruminant mood, while all is topped off with a cap which betokens a cousin skin to the brogans.

Cumming of Maine he says: "Born that populous thoroughfare to Third and Second to the river at a semi-run. Arriving at the river he seemed to be disconcerted and Rex around like a bob tail bull terrier. He made haste to capture him, which we did after a hard chase, and at once commenced to interview him.

Reporter—"Where are you going?"

Soldier—"Up or ribber."

Reporter—"How far?"

Soldier—"To Maddysun."

Reporter—"To Madisonville?"

Soldier—"No, sir; to drill."

Reporter—"Do you belong to the military?"

Soldier—"To de regiment ob de Grand Guards."

Reporter—"Who organized you?"

Soldier—"We's Gen. Runkle's solgers."

Reporter—"What does he propose to do with you?"

Soldier—"Don't know; only said he'd need us, and we fined."

Reporter—"Are you the same that were marching on Jackson street last night?"

Soldier—"Yes sur."

This was enough. The report was true, and they are General Runkle's soldiers. That's all the information we started for, and so we returned. On the way back we met a large company of these red coats parading the streets. They marched to the river, and were taken on board a boat with a barge, which moved off and paddled away, we suppose, to "Maddysun."

THE OPERA HOUSE.

"Rose in Paris" went off quite creditably last night at the Opera House. It is to be repeated to-night by a sensational drama of the most sensational school. We are to have Mr. Goodworth's "Hidden Hand." Mrs. Alhaugh makes a specialty of the part of Capt. Kidd, and does it with spirit. It is of course not a finished production, but in her many points of excellence and interest which justify the patronage she has received. Depended upon to. The presentation of the "Hidden Hand" is good, and it seldom fails to draw largely.

THE I. O. O. F. FAIR.

Its Termination This Evening—Premium Horses and Stock—Other Valuable Articles to be Raffled and Sold at Auction.

Another large and very select company of the youth and beauty and intelligence of Louisville attended the ladies' Fair at Odd Fellows' Hall last evening. Occasionally was one of the most interesting of the whole "carnival of pleasure," when has been its most delightful progress for more than a week. All the attractive resources of this fair managers were busily employed to the intense gratification of every visitor.

The stationary features of the entertainment seemed not to have lost their interest in the slightest degree, while the many new objects presented challenged the admiration of the more indifferent. At noon, the ladies in charge of the various departments, and their home or sister aids, were succeeding to their personal attentions to the immense throng of patrons. Such liberality, energy, and, above all, such a long-sustained assortment of labor, are rarely manifested even in behalf of an enterprise so preeminently worthy as that in which these inspirers of hope and cheer are toiling. They each and all deserve the warmest praise of the whole community, but especially of members of the order for which they have so zealously exerted themselves. In the centre of the hall, and directly in view, a home for the widows and orphans of deceased Odd Fellows, and which, by the way, denying the further existence of those ladies and men renders their presence here the more remarkable, is now completed and ready for occupancy, but upon the order there hangs out the broad realm of the Union.

This is the last evening of the fair. It will be succeeded by another, when I was a Clay Whig and a series of culminating incidents. The drawing and sale, from 8 o'clock this evening to 12 this stone is excellent, perfect horse among the lots of fat and flashy stock. It is hoped by the ladies to realize at least $1,300 for the horse and buggy, in which they surely ought not to be disappointed, for the chances are but five dollars each. Chance tickets may be had at the hall during the day. It is proposed to let the horse and buggy on a front round town to-day for the inspection of the public. Take a good look, all of you, and then take a chance. The splendid cooking stove, a huge trunk, two sewing machines, and some other valuable articles will also be disposed of by raffle. The auction sale, favorably inaugurated last night, will be resumed this evening until everything salable shall have been knocked down to the highest bidder. From the following list of premiums, a programme, it can be readily judged that the fair still continues to be liberally through one of the busiest and most enjoyable scenes known to the oldest inhabitant. It is important to say in mind that the premium and other fables will continue to roll that it until the last moment, and that the head ladies and the fair committee have resolved to abate none of their activity as long as there is a guest to serve.

GEN. RUNKLE'S.

Parade of the Grant Guards Yesterday—A Story One Caught and Interviewed.

The following paragraph, which appeared in the Evening Express of yesterday, caused no little comment among the citizens generally in and about the city:

"Gen. Sickles' office had night a company of thirty or forty negroes, armed with muskets, behind a fife and drum, marched out Jackson street to the common south of Portland, where they were drilled for about two hours in the manual. What does it mean? It is to be observed."

Desirous of finding out the truth or falsity of the report, and, if true, to what extent, and by what authority the negroes were armed and drilled to do battle, a reporter of the COURIER-JOURNAL started yesterday afternoon for the locality named, to strike, if possible, some trail to the common south of Portland, and, on reaching Second street, when he ran afoul of a warlike darky circumvented with all the panoply of grim-visaged war. Down Second street he came, with martial strut and sable frown. The people all ran out of their houses to look at him and men and women turned round and round to be amused.

This smelt like a mighty strong trail, and, believing that we had struck the right one, we followed him at a respectful distance. As he goes we describe him. He is not any brighter, when near the intelligent and manly shades of our own. Next is a pair of dark-gray jeans breeches, with a red stripe on the side, which, in its upward journey, disappears under a bright army flannel shirt, which Colonel Johnson eagerly solicits in Kentucky but throughout the whole South-west, we shall expect to see the Ku Klux take the position in the favor of the traveling public to which its superior accommodations entitle it. Added to these personal qualities calculated to attract visitors, the new proprietor is a thorough, hustle or wideawake, and possesses that peculiar administrative tact and capacity which the modern system of hotel keeping demands.

DANVILLE SEMINARY.

Report of the General Assembly Investigating Committee.

[From the Lexington Statesman, 21.]

The committee appointed by the General Assembly which met in New York last spring, to investigate the affairs of the Theological Seminary at Danville, Kentucky, met in that city on last Thursday. Their examination into the affairs of it have been most thorough. A great amount of testimony, written and oral, was taken, and the committee announced that it was surprised at the unanimity of sentiment in regard to the condition of that institution and to the remedy for it expressed by its friends all over the State. The trustees, the directors, the leading men of the church from all portions of the State, seemed to agree in regard to both. That is as they exist and as to what is needed for the future usefulness of the school. The committee will recommend a most thorough reorganization of the faculty. Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge tendered his resignation as Professor of Theology to the Board of Directors, which was accepted, to take effect at the end of the present session—the last of October. Drs. Yerkes and West placed their chairs at the disposal of the committee, but being willing to aid in any way of a most complete reorganization of the faculty. It is believed that Dr. Landis will also resign. If he has not already done so. The Presbyterian churches of the State which adhere to the General Assembly are very much aroused to the welfare of that institution, believing that it is a large thing for the benefit of the church depends upon that of the institution, and the church will expect the General Assembly to put the seminary in the way of great usefulness in the future.

E. D. KENNEDY.

He Defends Himself from Recent Attacks.

[To the Editor of the Cincinnati Gazette:]

Recent dispatches to you from Washington reflected on me in very severe terms, and on two other gentlemen, for defrauding colored people on of Government bounties, &c. The reflections were not one whit too severe if the premises were true. I beg leave to say that the whole statements, so far as I am concerned or know, are untrue. The party or parties who misled your Washington correspondent are guilty of a gross breach of confidence. The detestable author of part of the untruths is and has been for ten years utterly unworthy of credit even on oath, as I am informed and believe from an affidavit now put in my possession. If a certain military personage whose name is seldom or never met (such is my abhorrence of his character and private conduct), has been accessory to concocting these shameful calumnies, he did so from a desire to hide or direct attention from his own dark deeds, which are now being ventilated by his superiors in Washington. I am prepared to substantiate the painful allegations as to him by affidavits and by the testimony of gentlemen now visiting here from Louisville, Ky. People who live in glass houses should avoid throwing even small stones. I am yours faithfully,

E. D. KENNEDY.

MAXWELL HOUSE.

A New Hotel at Nashville.

The Nashville Union and American of Sunday says:

This magnificent hotel was lighted up last night for the first time, and presented a handsome and showy appearance. The spacious and elegant office, with its elaborately frescoed and tiled chandeliers, the parlors and dining room, with its ceiling of delicately tinted paper, the adjoining saloons, all elegantly furnished, and the whole presenting an appearance by all who entered, that they have seldom seen surpassed, if equaled, in outfit generally. The Maxwell House is one of the finest houses in America. This city is constantly receiving extraordinary recruits, and we have visited many hotels of reputation in the country are of this way of thinking.

An immense crowd assembled in front of the building, and a band of music added to the gayety. Numerous were assembled in the house, and the occasion created a stir in this particular locality that often seen.

We understand that the house will be opened on Wednesday next, and we doubt not it will be filled from that time.

THE SPEAKER OF THE SENATE.

A Word About Judge Alexander, of Fleming.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

O'BANNON'S STATION, Sept. 20, 1869.

Some of the papers are recommending Judge Alexander, of Fleming, for Speaker of the Senate.

He is an old and tried Democrat, a gentleman and a scholar. I have known him long. A better choice could not be made. It is well known that prominent men in Eastern Kentucky, under the cloak of Democracy, led by W. R. Wadsworth, tried to run the people into the Radical ranks. Judge Alexander opposed this faction, and met them fairly and squarely on the great issues then before the country.

He ran for County Judge of Fleming against Col. Cox, who was the candidate of this Wadsworth move, in 1865. The administration had no resort in bayonets and bummers to beat him. Col. Cox has since abandoned the clique, and is now a true Democrat.

After the war Judge Alexander was nominated for the Senate in his district. It was the district and said he was called on to lead a forlorn hope, the district being nearly 1,000 Radical and comprises a large territory, much of which is mountainous. The Radicals put in nomination their next obliest man to Wadsworth in that portion of the State, Dr. Samuel Maguire, who combined with the politician the reformed preacher, and was a very formidable man. The race was long and sharp. The debates were able and largely attended. The judge came off winner, was elected by a handsome majority. There is no doubt that Judge Alexander was the choice of the Democracy of the Ninth district, when Judge Young got the nomination and beat the notorious Sam McKee. The Convention was for him; but some of those Wadsworth Democrats from Fleming were delegates and threw Alexander off. Judge Alexander is qualified to preside over the Senate, and is popular with the people. The Senate ought to elect him Speaker. It is a notorious fact that Gov. Stevenson has passed all applications for office from Eastern Kentucky by, and gives them to Middle and southern Kentucky. It is due to that portion of the State that they should have the Speaker, and Judge Alexander ought to have it. He has devoted his whole life to the Democratic party, and instead of laying up money as he could have done, has spent it to serve the old Democratic party and friends, and is now qualified and fit to discharge the duties of any office in the State or nation, and I hope the Senate will consider his claims and the claims of this portion of the State, and give him the office. He is worthy and well qualified. I have met him in debate and can well attest his ability.

THE GALT HOUSE.

WHAT THE NEWSPAPERS SAY.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Galt House, Louisville.

Our exchanges are full of the praises of this great establishment, and we do not think they have said a word too much. If Proprietor Hall and Colonel Johnson form a cabinet circle, a huge trust, two sewing machines, and some other valuable articles will also be disposed of by raffle. The auction sale, favorably inaugurated last night, will be resumed this evening until everything salable shall have been knocked down to the highest bidder. From the following list of premiums, a programme, it can be readily judged that the fair still continues to be liberally through one of the busiest and most enjoyable scenes known to the oldest inhabitant. It is important to say in mind that the premium and other fables will continue to roll that it until the last moment, and that the head ladies and the fair committee have resolved to abate none of their activity as long as there is a guest to serve.

From the Boston Post.

Galt House, Louisville, Ky.

The telegraph announces that Col. Jilson P. Johnson, of Arkansas, has become proprietor of this celebrated hotel. Col. Johnson was formerly a staff of Gen. John C. Breckinridge, and is widely and favorably known. The Galt House cost a million dollars, and is considered among the finest specimens of hotel architecture in the world. The Louisville Journal says of the great hotel and its accomplished manager:

From the Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist.

The Galt House.

This great hotel, in Louisville, Kentucky, has passed under the control of Colonel Jilson Johnson, a gallant soldier, a true gentleman, a man of elegant and generous manners—the man to keep a hotel. Under his management the Galt House will rank among the principal hotels of the country. Friends for its success. Its genial proprietor is the polite waiters and attendants and the promptness towards guests of its principal clerks. We commend the Galt House and, when in Louisville, be sure to stay there.

From the N. Y. Express.

A Great Hotel.

The magnificent Galt House in Louisville, which is justly claimed to be among the great hotels of the country, has already changed hands, and is now under the management of Col. Jilson P. Johnson, a Southern gentleman. The success is secured undoubtedly by his accession to the proprietorship.

From the Frankfort Yeoman.

The Galt House.

We see by the Louisville papers that this splendid hotel has changed proprietors, and is now under the management of Colonel Jilson P. Johnson, formerly of Frankfort, a Miller in the management. With the wide acquaintance and great popularity of Col. Johnson he cannot fail to make it a success. Next to a pair of dark-gray jeans breeches, with a red stripe on the side, which, in its upward journey, disappears under a bright army flannel shirt, which Colonel Johnson eagerly solicits in Kentucky but throughout the whole South-west, we shall expect to see the Ku Klux take the position in the favor of the traveling public to which its superior accommodations entitle it. Added to these personal qualities calculated to attract visitors, the new proprietor is a thorough, hustle or wideawake, and possesses that peculiar administrative tact and capacity which the modern system of hotel keeping demands.

DANVILLE SEMINARY.

Report of the General Assembly Investigating Committee.

[From the Lexington Statesman, 21.]

The committee appointed by the General Assembly which met in New York last spring, to investigate the affairs of the Theological Seminary at Danville, Kentucky, met in that city on last Thursday. Their examination into the affairs of it have been most thorough. A great amount of testimony, written and oral, was taken, and the committee announced that it was surprised at the unanimity of sentiment in regard to the condition of that institution and to the remedy for it expressed by its friends all over the State. The trustees, the directors, the leading men of the church from all portions of the State, seemed to agree in regard to both. That is as they exist and as to what is needed for the future usefulness of the school. The committee will recommend a most thorough reorganization of the faculty. Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge tendered his resignation as Professor of Theology to the Board of Directors, which was accepted, to take effect at the end of the present session—the last of October. Drs. Yerkes and West placed their chairs at the disposal of the committee, but being willing to aid in any way of a most complete reorganization of the faculty. It is believed that Dr. Landis will also resign. If he has not already done so. The Presbyterian churches of the State which adhere to the General Assembly are very much aroused to the welfare of that institution, believing that it is a large thing for the benefit of the church depends upon that of the institution, and the church will expect the General Assembly to put the seminary in the way of great usefulness in the future.

Since the close of the religious debate at Winchester, between Rev. Mr. Fitch, of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. Mr. Brooks, of the Christian Church, the Methodists are claiming a great victory for their champion. The Lexington Statesman remarks: "How unprofitable are such discussions—how barren of good results. Almost as well named a couple of horses, one after each church, and let them run a mile race around a track. Doubtless both of these gentlemen who participated in the discussion were able men and scholars, but nobody was converted."

A terrible storm prevailed at New Braunfels, Texas, on Sunday, the 12th. Terry's and Canton's mills and twenty-five other houses were destroyed, three persons were killed and several others seriously injured. The loss in property is estimated at $100,000.

A German named Johannes Scheffer was arraigned before a justice of the peace in Ironton, Mo., a few days since and held in $263, on a charge of stealing a pipe. A whole day was consumed in the investigation of the case. A two hours' speech was made in his defense.

A desirable class of immigrants are the Swiss, who are flocking to Tennessee. Says the Knoxville Press and Herald: "Among the most hardy, industrious, moral and intelligent immigrants who flock monthly and daily to American shores are the Swiss. Educated in the arts of industry in their own healthful country, they come among us, not as loungers and mendicants to devour our substance, but to add to our material wealth and advance our civilization."

The editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) New Era having complimented Judge Durming, the postmaster, on his efficiency, the Judge advertises in the Constitution a disclaimer of such back-handed flattery, and charges upon the Era editor flagrant violations of the postoffice law, such as sending through the mails large numbers of papers to parties who are not subscribers, and writing business notes on the margin. The Judge concludes his advertisement as follows: "Dr. Bard, knowing his own price to be very low, indeed, has undertaken to buy his peace with ring-boned flattery, and proposes to throw himself in, just to make good measure. The offer is declined."

A destructive storm visited Plaquemines, La., on the 1st, and continued for several days. All that portion of the parish on the left bank from Frederic's to Fort St. Philip was submerged. The salt water at the court-house and jail attained a hight of two feet, and below, at the Quarantine Station, of four feet. All the rice in stacks was of course partially submerged, especially in the back lands, where the salt water must have attained a hight of at least four feet.

...the country below, where the gale seemed to have raged with greater force and violence and where, from its closer neighborhood, the salt water has greater power, much rice cut and remaining unstacked in the fields was washed away, and many rice stacks were carried off, but may be recovered in a damaged condition.

A novel proceeding, growing out of the mysterious disappearance of Miss Beach several weeks ago, is thus related by the Pleasant Hill (Mo.) Leader. It says: "A young lady living near Harrisonville was one morning missed at home, and Mr. Bowers was charged with abducting and murdering her. He was apprehended and taken before a justice of the peace, and whilst the trial was progressing the young lady was found at the residence of a friend alive and well, and brought before the justice; but his honor refusing to take her evidence as to whether she had been killed or not (supposing, no doubt, she was not a competent witness to so interesting a fact), committed the young man to jail to answer for the alleged crime at the next circuit court. Bowers was discharged from jail, however, by Judge Copeland, by a writ of habeas corpus."

A correspondent, writing from Fort Davis, Texas, under date of August 27th, says that Capt. Scott and party, from Fort Mason, Texas, en route for California with a large drove of cattle, were attacked between Fort Davis and the Rio Grande by a large body of Indians, who succeeded in capturing a large part of the drove, mostly beeves. The gallant Capt. Scott could not brook this defeat, so collecting his best men, and leaving the balance of the herd with the weaker portion to guard them, they started in pursuit; and after pursuing them five miles, overtook the painted red-skinned scoundrels and opened upon them, when the row commenced. After a desperate struggle the Texas band with their Winchester rifles prevailed, and the red-skin cutthroats broke for their holes in the deep canons of the Lympia mountains—and the Texas boys returned without the loss of man or beast. Several Indians were killed and wounded.

Martial-law, or in other words martial-lawlessness, is still kept up in the South. There is less freedom in the South than in any of the British dependencies. It is only a short time since that a Governor General of Jamaica was arraigned in a British court for a capital felony in having established martial law and ordered executions under it, when the state of insurrection did not justify a suspension of the established law of the land.

Admiral Hoff, who was instructed to investigate the circumstances of the executions of American citizens in Cuba, reports to the State Department that some of them were murders in cold blood. Those murderers should be punished. The punishment should be such as to prevent the repetition of the crime. To accept mere apologies would be idle and absurd. Apologies cost nothing and are worth no more than they cost. We might have a score of murders to-day, fifty apologies to-morrow, and a hundred murders the next day. We owe Spain no indulgence or forbearance. Inexorable justice is all that she has a right to expect of us. For thirty years she has made the Gulf a bad neighborhood.

Persistent Effrontery.

A great deal is no doubt accomplished sometimes by mere positiveness, vehemence, and downright impudence and effrontery of assertion. The opinions of some persons in regard to currency redemption have, it seems to us, been to a considerable extent influenced by such means. The Radical organs habitually denounce the proposition to redeem the five-twenty bonds, like other pecuniary obligations, with the legally-established currency of the country, as "a rascally policy," "unqualified villainy," "absolute knavery," "an attempt to repudiate the national debt." No matter what strong arguments, what conclusive reasons, may be offered in favor of the justness and the rectitude of the plan of paying the bonds in currency, all arguments and reasons are met by the Radicals with their thunder-storm of fierce and scurrilous epithets and only with that. This ruffianly and bullying treatment of a great national question, affecting deeply the interests and the welfare of the whole people of the country, has not, as we have said, been without effect. The continual reiteration of audacious assertions and denunciations have temporarily biased some minds that should be above bias from such causes.

In the interest of the bondholders, Mr. Schenck, of Ohio, a few months ago, brought forward a bill in Congress, generally known as the public credit bill, and it became a law. It provided that the principal of the five-twenties should be paid in gold or its equivalent. Not only was the bare enactment of that law an acknowledgment that the bonds were not payable in gold by the law under which they were purchased by their holders, but Schenck's law contains, in terms, a full and undeniable recognition of the fact that the bonds might, according to the expressed conditions of the contract between the bondholders and the Government, be paid in Treasury notes. It refers to them as bonds "payable in lawful money or other currency than gold and silver." This law was the work of our Radical Congress very soon after Grant's inauguration and not many months after his election. It contains, as we have said, an unequivocal concession, that, by the terms of the contract, the bondholders can be paid in currency, yet, while conceding this, it prohibits the exercise of the privilege. But this prohibitory law, this partisan enactment, is no part of the contract between the bondholders and the Government. It does not enter into or affect the contract at all. It can be repealed. It will be repealed, and the Secretary of the Treasury's outrageous action in the wanton sacrifice of the vital and vast interests of an oppressed nation will hasten the repeal and perhaps hasten some other things. Abundant and conclusive proof has been arrayed, outside of Schenck's "public credit law," that the bonds are, by the contract, undeniably payable in the national currency, but, to stop the Radical clamor, we have chosen to refer to the acknowledgment involved in that very law itself. And now let the Radical organs go on, raining, hailing, snowing, and sleeting their epithets.

By paying the bondholders in the currency demanded by the terms of their contract, the Government will practice no repudiation. By paying them in gold and silver, the Government would practice the most inexcusable and injurious repudiation. It would repudiate its faith to the people by paying an immense amount of their money to a privileged class not entitled to it. It would repudiate its promise to the holder of every greenback in the world—a promise recorded in black and white upon every greenback in the world. It would make every greenback a Government falsehood, a Government lie, a Government fraud, a Government swindle. Some of the Radical organs, whilst unable to deny that the contract with the bondholders, the law under which the bonds were negotiated, does not call for payment in gold and silver, insist upon an allegation, that, when the negotiations took place, Jay Cooke, and several other gentlemen prominent in the Radical party, said privately, in reply to applications personally and by letter, that the bonds would no doubt be paid in specie. If it had been a provision of the contract that the bonds should be paid in specie, there could of course have been no occasion for such applications. And the idea that the purchasers of bonds, men of business investing their money in public securities and having the whole law under which they invested open before them, were governed in their important transactions not by the plain terms of that law but by the private and irresponsible talk of Jay Cooke and others peculiarly interested in the most rapid possible sale of the bonds, is in the first degree and to the last degree preposterous. The editor of the New York Tribune says that he, even he, gave assurances in his columns that the bonds would be paid in specie, but surely fellows that were idiots enough to rely upon Jay Cooke's talk and Greeley's editorials instead of the law deserve no sympathy if the large profits of their bonds turn out a little less tremendous than they expected. The false assurances of Cooke and Greeley may be a good reason enough why they should make contributions to the bondholders, but no reason at all why the people should.

We have said that the payment of the bonds in specie would be a repudiation of faith to the people. We earnestly hope that there will not be any repudiation, but if there shall be, it will not be in favor of the bondholders and against the people. You may swear to that.

Direct to Paducah.

The last Legislature granted an exceedingly favorable charter for a railroad from Louisville, running down the valley of the Ohio river in the direction of Owensboro, Henderson and Paducah. This road, if built, will run through the richest agricultural portion of Kentucky, and will bring to Louisville the entire products of the rich counties of Meade, Breckinridge, Hancock, Ohio, Daviess, Henderson, Union and Crittenden. The people in the counties along the route of the proposed road seem alive to its importance, and the corporators and the friends of the enterprise have been called to meet at Owensboro, on the 11th of October, to take the necessary steps for organizing the company and putting the road under headway. Every friend of the proposed road is cordially and earnestly invited to attend the meeting at Owensboro.

The following is a list of corporators: Dr. Foss, Alanson Moorman, Henry J. Craycroft, A. F. Camp, L. M. Payne, Robt. Stonestreet, Weeden Stewart, Philip Miller, W. George Anderson, D. R. C. Hewitt, F. S. J. Ronald, G. Spratt, Lyttleton Cooke, E. D. Standiford, and George W. Anderson of Louisville and Jefferson county; H. K. Pusey, Mack Meadow, Jas. Thompson, Gus. Graham, O. C. Richardson, G. W. Anderson, Abraham Chick, and McGill Robinson, of Mead county; Richard M. Wather, Thos. J. Jolly, John B. Bruner, Peter Dent, Thos. Adkisson, Green W. Beard, S. V. R. Board, Frank Fraize, G. P. Jolly, William Withers, G. P. Duncan, Somers Dean, John Dean, Wm. J. Robertson and Thomas O. Moorman, of Breckinridge county; George W. Williams, Stephen Vowels, James W. Snider, William Sterritt, Minor E. Pate, W. S. Gibbs, and Jas. Mason, of Hancock county; John H. Barret, R. T. Glass, W. J. Marshall, P. H. King, J. C. Stapp, J. H. Priest, James Alves, Isom Johnson, Andrew Kohl, Harrison Hancock, Henry Dixon, Sr., and Harrison Powell, of Henderson county; R. A. Spalding, George N. Hammer, Alfred McGill, Charles Smith, J. L. Cambron, John M. Dyer, William P. Tucker, and Hugh Nunn, of Union county; John Nunn, Otho Nunn, John W. Blue, Bart Moore, Wm. Wallace, Sim. Hodge, and James Cruel, of Crittenden county, C. W. Bennett, W. P. Fowler, Blunt Hodge, Sam Piles, and Dr. Carson, of Livingston county; L. M. Flournoy, Gabe Kay, Gabe Rabb, Thomas Grundy, J. M. Bigger, John C. Noble, L. D. Husbands, John Q. A. King, and J. W. Thompson, of McCracken county; and Josiah Veach, Daniel Griffith, Ben F. Ramsay, George Mattingly, John G. McFarland, Horace Burton, and Henry Vanover, of Daviess county.

The corporators hereby extend to all the citizens of the counties through which it is proposed to construct this road, a cordial invitation to attend the meeting at Owensboro and participate in its proceedings. They would also be glad to meet such citizens of Ohio, McLean, Webster and Hopkins counties as may see fit to attend. It is earnestly hoped that every county will be fully represented. The construction of this road is a great undertaking, but it is one that can be readily and easily accomplished if the people interested will determine that it shall be and will go to work in earnest to do it.

A New Novel.

A really good book, and particularly a really good novel, is so rare now-a-days as to render the business of literary criticism in the daily journals a weary and too often a profitless occupation. Even the reviews in the periodicals are dull for want of proper sustenance. We read the Athenæum, the Saturday Review and the Spectator, we run through the Paris hebdomadals; we cast about among the German and American monthlies, and "all is barren." It may be safely averred that during an entire year not one great work of fiction has appeared in all the world. The recent stories of Freitag, Trollope, and Auerbach are merely entertaining and over average. They do not rival their own earlier brothers and sisters. In this country a first-rate novel is simply a thing unknown. The little that we have which is worth reading comes from abroad.

A young Englishman (and when we say "young" we mean it in its English sense, which is at least "forty") has been latterly sojourning in New York, where he has written a great deal for the magazines. His name is Justin McCarthy. Among other things he has contributed a novel to Harper's Magazine, entitled "My Enemy's Daughter." It is readable and the reverse of sensational; a rather melancholy, certainly a quiet story; written in graphic English and relating to scenes and people who are always more or less interesting. It deals in opera people and theatricals and Bohemian life; but it is fresh, unaffected and not without power. Mr. McCarthy knows London and the stage, and he sketches both with a free but chaste hand. The hero, Emmanuel Temple, tells the story himself. The scene is laid in a small English sea-port. Temple has a fine tenor voice, and is attached to a church choir, where he meets Christina Braun, who is the daughter of a German toymaker. Christina, besides singing in the choir, performs at a music hall, from which she is escorted at night by a carpenter, who is an accomplished bass, and who fights a battle in the cause of love and jealousy with Emmanuel Temple one night after dark. The carpenter pummels his antagonist out of all time, and when Emmanuel recovers from a tremendous knock-down blow he finds Christina bending over him. The lady is obliged to desert the choir in consequence of the scruples of people who object to a soprano in the church alternating with soprano in a tavern, and she is followed by the bass carpenter and our tenor hero. Christana's father is fond of smoking, playing the flute, and making observations "on the heavens, the beauty of life, and the divine purpose in everything." His daughter earns money and provides dinner. Emmanuel grows deeper in love with her every day, and she returns his affection. They talk of a grand lyric career upon the stage. Old Braun dies. Christana is so constantly visited by her lover that the gossips begin to talk. Her brother writes to her from Germany, offering her a home, but in such a way that she is at first easily persuaded to remain in England. But she reveals her nature. She raves of great triumphs, and is not disposed to play at love in a cottage with Temple. After a while she wearies of spooning with him and disappears, leaving a letter with the old familiar tag to it, "I shall never, never forget you."

After a vain and dreary search for her in Germany, Temple comes back to seek his fortune in London. By very hard work he supports himself, struggles on as a teacher of music and singing. He lodges on the Surrey side of the Thames with a Mrs. Lyndon. Her daughter Lilla is a bright, attractive creature. She is no angel, has no scruples whatever on the score of deceiving duns and rate collectors, and yet there is something exceedingly winning about her. She and her mother find it very hard to keep the wolf from the door, but Lilla laughs at the tricks and expedients by which mamma and herself escape while the hound is on the watch for them at the very threshold. "You would not contemplate poverty of this sort," says Mr. McCarthy, "without an impression that in its meanness and its cynicism it bordered on vice, and yet its endurance, its frankness, its cheerful determination, were dashed with a flavor of a kind of virtue."

Lilla had a rich uncle, Mr. Lyndon, who tried to make her settle down as a governess, "but she always quitted her place abruptly, and came back to her mother reveling and rejoicing in her freedom, which she celebrated by laying out part of the balance of her salary in a fowl, or oysters, or a lobster, or something nice for supper." Her mother was a creature of the Mrs. Nickleby type, who believed her daughter to be a fragile thing without appetite, while the girl was a perfect glutton at pastry and lobster salads. Between Temple and Lilla a Bohemian friendship is struck up—no Lisette affair, but an honest intimacy and companionship. Lilla wanted money, and would gladly accept anybody who could make her comfortable. Temple has yet his grand passion, and no other property worth mentioning. Lilla speaks of Temple to her uncle, who is a patron of the opera, and who gives little dinners to the performers at the Star and Garter, and the uncle enters his name in a memorandum book. During a provincial tour, undertaken in the way of business, Temple comes across a strange vagabond, who turns out to be the father of Lilla Lyndon. When he goes back to town he hears of nothing but the success at the opera of Madam Reichestein. Of course this lady is none other than Christina Braun; and, thinking she was serving Temple, Lilla Lyndon, who is introduced to Christina by her uncle, tells Christina that she (Lilla) is engaged to him. Then we have Temple, after a while, meeting Christina, and even singing with her on the stage; but she has married an Italian revolutionist, and Temple begins to perceive that her chief love is for her own aggrandizement. Very touching and graceful indeed is Mr. McCarthy's analysis of the struggles in the mind of this woman; very touching, too, the gradual revelation of the truth to Temple, to whom consolation at length comes in the form of another Lilla Lyndon, the daughter of his "enemy," who is not an unrelenting foe at the last. One by one the subjects of interest in life are quietly removed from the hero, but the love of this young girl is left him. Her trials and her trust, the hopes and patience of Temple, intervals of pathetic comedy played by the father of the first Lilla, an adapted version of the Orsini conspiracy, are the main features of the rest of the novel.

Such is the plot. As will be seen it admits of a great deal of worldly wisdom, wit, humor, and knowledge of artist life. Its love passages are particularly natural and touching; for of all the situations in which the heart is most sensibly moved that is the most distressing where its ordeal is disenchantment. The Pall Mall Gazette complains of the sombre character—the minor key-note—of "My Enemy's Daughter." It gives no "vision of the nursery," nor any "bridesmaids and wedding wine." But it does give us a graphic sketch of life in London, and that is enough.

The Last Treasury Order.

A Washington dispatch of last Friday says:

> Several clerks in the Treasury to-day rather than be catechised as to their birth, age, relations, Representative in Congress, etc., refused to obey the recent official order exacting such information and tendered their resignation. The female clerks were highly indignant, and refused to tell their age, who got them appointed, etc.

We need not wonder that the order created, as it is said to have done, much excitement in the Treasury. It was impertinent, insolent and offensive. The questions put to the male and female clerks could not possibly have anything to do with their qualifications for their places or their fidelity in their discharge of their duties. The only purpose can have been to obtain the means of gratifying political or personal malice. Some administrations that lived before Grant's were guilty of very petty things, but certainly no administration prior to the last 4th of March was ever capable of making such an order as we have here recorded. Radicalism's greatest talent is in the invention of new meannesses. Its talent in that line may fairly be called genius. What are we to expect from the administration of the Treasury Department when we find the Secretary turning his attention to such things?

TAKE AS A PREVENTIVE.

The Reasons of its Superiority Over All Other Chill Remedies.

Wintersmith's Tonic Sirup or Improved Chill Cure is not only an ante-periodic, but acts upon the liver also, so that in cases where persons are bilious, as indicated by sallow complexions, loss of appetite, &c., generally followed by chills and fever, or in higher latitudes or in more exposed situations by continued or intermitting fever, the use of this tonic for a few days will entirely remove these symptoms, and show evidence of its efficacy by restoring the normal clearness of the complexion, and in an increased appetite and a restored healthy action of the secretory organs. This is really the great advantage this tonic possesses over the so-called tonics now in use, the best of which are but anti-periodics, and whilst they may break the chill, they do not remove the cause of the disease, but leave the system in as bad or in a worse condition than when first taken. The use of this medicine is therefore indicated in cases where persons are exposed to miasmatic influences, and is as valuable in warding off attacks of bilious and other fevers as in curing chills and fevers. By the use of chloride or carbolic acid in the sleeping chambers, and a proper use of Wintersmith's Tonic Sirup as indicated by the symptoms, a person may live and enjoy good health in the most malarious districts.

What an Eminent Chemist Says.

Read the testimonial of Dr. J. P. Barnum, the eminent chemist and proprietor of the well-known Louisville Chemical Works:

LOUISVILLE CHEMICAL WORKS, July 28, 1869.

Dr. Wintersmith:

DEAR SIR: I am acquainted with your formula and method of preparing your Tonic Sirup or Improved Chill Cure. It gives me pleasure to state that it contains no arsenic, but is strictly a vegetable preparation, and has, in my opinion, more than ordinary merit as a domestic remedy for malarious diseases. I have recommended it in several cases of chills and fever of long standing, some of them for years, and it has been in every case a perfect success.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 22, 1869.

ROUND-ABOUT.

I.

A Prayer Marked.

The New York Times has had translated the proceedings of the court in the late extraordinary trial in France of a merchant and an interdicted priest, charged with trafficking in menses to an enormous extent. The result of the investigation has been the conviction of the culprits, and their telling sentenced to fine and imprisonment commensurate with their crime. The plan of operations of the two showed great tact and cunning, and they made it pay them handsomely. The trial has created a profound feeling in France.

II

The Magazines for October.

Among the good things in "Putnam" are, "Old Boston and St. Botolph," by Mrs. Nathaniel Hawthorne, "Pinnaza Belgioioso in Italy," by H. T. Tuckerman. The best article, however, in the number is Mr. Folsom's "Leaves from a publisher's letter-book," which is full, of new literary anecdotes of distinguished literary men. The "Atlantic" has some clever lines by Whittier on Gettysburg, a rather good poem by Bayard Taylor, and a sketch of an excursion, by Mrs. Agassiz. The "Galaxy" and "Harper" keep well up to their standard, and are not at all behind the others in their contents.

III.

Science in Great Britain.

Professor Thompson has written an important letter, giving the result of his observations in mid-ocean, and his examination of Atlantic ooze. Archdeacon Freeman has written an interesting paper on "Man vs. the Animals," the Rev. F. O. Morris on the "Difficulties of Darwinism," and Dr. McOsen one on the same subject, to which the convert Dr. Huxley has replied. Sir John Lubbock is also out in a paper on the "Psychic Condition of Man." All of these contributions on scientific subjects are exceedingly interesting, but are entirely too long to reproduce, so we must content ourselves with the mere mention of them.

IV.

Lady Mac, Grove's Calumny.

The letter of Lord Lindsay to the London Times, accompanied by a letter from Lady Byron written in 1856, giving an account of the separation from her husband and confirmed one of her ladyship's most intimate friends, effectually silences the memory of Byron and consigns Mrs. Stowe to an eternity of contempt and her digested slander to oblivion. Mrs. Stowe has labored in all courts to reopen the discussion, and it is to be hoped forever. Mrs. Stowe, in gratifying a beastly, perverse taste, has only succeeded in bringing down upon her the execration of all right-thinking people. The silent, unsavoring finger of scorn will point to her as the embodiment of baffled malice, as a literary outlaw (a scotched snake would better describe her.) She will bear watching for the future. The venom is not all out of her yet.

V.

Gambo vs. Oxford.

The aristocratic subcreasis who were at the bottom of the late humiliation put upon the pseudo blooded of New England, are about to be met by the favorite ally of the Pilgrim sons. When they were sorely pressed during the late difficulty Massachusetts made up her ranks with negro troops, who "fought nobly" and sustained the honor of the Bay State during several encounters. Now that the Pilgrim sons are in another predicament the son and brother is again to be called upon to do what they couldn't. A "Northern gentleman of means" (a carpet-bag planter on the sea Islands), thinks he has among his colored brethren several who could beat the Oxford four or Wilkesboro regatta "in race, color, or present condition." Let the gentlemen from Africa then come up to the rescue for the second time and teach these insolent Britons that as they turned the scales of victory during the late war so will they now turn it again. If Massachusetts' quota as of yore be made up from the late down-trodden. New England expends every nigger to do his duty. Her bells and cannon cannot be used again effectively as executors.

VI.

A Seaside Carnival.

A pleasant little description of the closing of the regatta week at Ryde is given in a letter of the 15th. Every nook and corner of the Isle of Wight is more or less enchanting, but as the charms of sea and land are made a piquant seasoning of other interests—flirtations, gossip, beauty, scandal, yacht races, distinguished foreigners, native belles, cloudless skies, bewitching maidens, and shoals of blissful youngsters. All these can be seen and enjoyed on any fine afternoon during the season that one chooses to spend on the pier, and some cockney, who has exchanged the bricks of Babylon for those of this jaunty, wanes eloquent. He must have been put in comfortable apartments on the pier, the hottest, fecked with dainty dishes of all sizes, or with an outlook of fair woods; or, at least, he must have found comfortable companionship there, good cooks, and good wines, for hearty enjoyment lurks in his every paragraph. Ill-tempered people there are who go to such places determined to find fault, and on avenging Providence not unfrequently furnishes them with the text. They arrive at places called Sea View, where there is no view at all; are swindled by hackmen; filled by landlads; unsought by the kindly folk who might enliven less surly visitors, go away the worse in body and mind for weeks of perpetual grumbling. People of a cheerful disposition and less exacting papers, however, may find in this lovely town the attractions of the country and seaside described, every phase of English life, and a thousand ways of lottering away the precious days of idleness won, by the year's labor.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

—Senator Stuyvesant, of Pennsylvania, and Miss Sturgess, of Wilkesbarre, in that State, were married a few days ago.

—The Edinburgh Review is to be edited by Henry Kingsley, who is to receive five thousand dollars a year for his services.

—Thomas Graham, D. C. L., F. R. S., Master of the English Mint, and one of the most eminent chemists of the age, died in London a few days ago.

—John Adams, a descendant of President Adams, was found dead in his bed in Boston on Thursday morning since. He was the business agent of an insurance company.

—James Parton having come out in favor of Mrs. Stowe's Byron slander, the Boston Courier styles him "the Sancho Panza of a broken-footed Quixotte." Which is very good of Boston.

—Dr. Northrop, of Yale College, who was elected by the Montgomery Mail to be a near relation who subsequently turned out to be a man, declines the Presidency of the Alabama University at Tuscaloosa.

—Chief Justice Perley, of New Hampshire, having passed his 70th year, retires from the bench in obedience to a law of the State which doesn't believe that a man is fit to be Chief Justice when he gets to be that old.

—Seven feet of three great travelers are now treading the soil of the American continent, Prince Arthur is wandering in Canada, President Grant in Pennsylvania, and Vice President Colfax in California. They all find what they are in search of—the fossiliferous humbug of the mob at every station.

—Mr. Schurz went to Niagara Falls the other day, went to Table rock, handed his watch, and money to a boy, and then proceeded to go over the falls. The boy followed him to the last of him. He was not the Carl Schurz whose name we often see in the newspapers.

—But perhaps it had better have been.

—The authorities of the city of Mexico have discovered another plot to overthrow President Juarez, the prime mover of which was said to be Negrete, who had been concealed in the city for a month or more. A specie escort to Vera Cruz, containing several millions of dollars, was to have been seized, and money used to aid Negrete in establishing a new government. The conspirador was still in the city at latest accounts.

—The Rochester Democrat (Radical) tells us that "General Robert Lowry, candidate for Governor General of Mississippi on the Dent ticket, received his title by a commission issued at Richmond." It is a rather singular coincidence that General James Longstreet, Governor Sprague's Surveyor of the port of New Orleans, received his title by a commission issued at the same place.

—The Nashville Union and American says that the Hon. John C. Burch has purchased an interest in its business and will be associated in future in its editorial management. Such is an able and accomplished man, and has had experience both as a writer and a politician. He has been Speaker of the Tennessee Senate, a Colonel in the Confederate army, and a successful lawyer.

—Hon. C. W. Chandler has become the editor of the Knoxville Whig. The Whig has been a religious paper in the strict sense of the term, and yet has always been edited by a minister of the Gospel, or by a man who had that title. It was first edited, for many years, by Parson Brownlow, then by Parson Pearne, and now it is to be edited by Parson Charleon. Some decent latitude would make it a much more pious and useful paper than it has ever yet been.

—The Hon. Marcus G. Beresford, D. D., Archbishop of Armagh, the great stand-on of the first Earl of Tyrone, died in Dublin last Thursday, aged 63 years. A New York paper tells us that the Archbishop was a graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1824. He was immediately ordained and appointed a rector in the diocese of Kilmore, in Ireland. He gradually rose to be Vicar-General of Kilmore, then Archdeacon of Ardagh, and finally Bishop of Kilmore in 1864. In 1822 he was translated to Armagh and became the 104th Archbishop of that See. He was the patron of 36 livings or rectorships, and his income exceeded $50,000. He lived just long enough to see the English Church disestablished in Ireland.

—Daniel Webster was a philosopher long before he dreamed of being a statesman. At the age of twenty he wrote thus to his brother Ezekiel: "I have now by me two very nice lawful Federal currency, next week I will send them, if they be all they will buy a pipe with a pipe you can smoke, something inspired wisdom; wisdom is allied to fortitude, from fortitude it is but one step to stoutness, and stoicism never pants for the world's goods; so perhaps my two cents, by this process, may put you quite at ease about cash." To each of us as have but a single nickel in our pockets those words are valuable. They would be, at least, if a nickel would buy a pipe and the tobacco with which to fill it.

—Queen Victoria, accompanied by Princess Louise and Prince Beatrice, and attended by Lady Churchill and Colonel H. E. Ponsonby, arrived at Invertrossachs House, Scotland, on the 2d inst., on a visit to the Trossachs district. The Edinburgh Scotsman says: "The Queen was dressed in black, and, together with the Princesses, was very pleasantly attired. Her Majesty was looking remarkably well, and did not seem to be the least fatigued with her journey. The simplicity of her costume and the good-natured smile with which she returned the cheers of the crowd were the means of calling forth many laudatory remarks from the spectators, who appear to be much pleased with the unostentatious manner in which her Majesty traveled."

—Ex-Lady Palmerston, to whose death last Sunday we have already referred, the Boston Advertiser says: "She was a lady of considerable notoriety for many years. A daughter of the first Viscount Melbourne, and sister of that Viscount Melbourne who was Prime Minister for most of the time from 1834 to 1841, she was married to Earl Cowper, but between her and Lord Palmerston relations existed that were supposed to be the source of Pleasonte. She became a widow, and Lord Palmerston married her when he was in his fifty-sixth year, the lady being of the same age, almost thirty years since. Their relations do not appear to have affected their social standing, but not only was Lord Palmerston always a man of considerable popularity, but in the last ten years of his life he was almost a dictator in British politics. This shows that our British brethren take a very charitable view of the infirmities of genius, when genius is represented by men of rank and position."

—Wilkie at one of the watering places last summer a Sicilian Island belle succeeded in capturing a live English Lord. The Home Journal of last week contained an official announcement of the engagement. The New York Sun of a later date has the following: "Yesterday the gentlemen friends of Lord Hubert Ainsley, of London, entertained him at a dinner in honor of his engagement to a beautiful Sicilian Island belle and heiress, which has just been announced. But it is to be observed in this country in July, and, while sojourning at one of the places of fashionable resort, fell in love, proposed and was accepted by the beautiful girl who is his fiancee. The dinner was given at the residence of Mr. Jared Oliver, in Twenty-third street. It was entirely a 'stag' party, but during the dinner young Ainsley announced that it was his intention to give a dejeuner at an early day to both ladies and gentlemen. Wine flowed like water, and all accordingly sparkled at the festive board. The party broke up at about 6 o'clock, and the hacks about the Fifth Avenue Hotel were in uncommon demand. The nuptials are to be celebrated in grand style in November, and, we are assured, 'will throw into the shade any wedding ever consummated in New York.'" The prospective bride is having her trousseau made in this city from patterns sent from Paris, and at some future time it will be fully described in the Sun. This wedding will probably take place in Grace Church, and the subsequent reception at Delmonico's.

WINCHESTER.

A Great Debate—Retrospective and Otherwise.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

WINCHESTER, Ky., Sept. 20.

The great ecclesiastical battle is over. As after Waterloo, "the pale moon is riding in the quiet heavens," and the hush has become general. For five hours of every one of six days the Baptist church has been thronged, and Elder John A. Brooks and Rev. J. W. Fitch, the former the head of the Christian Church, the latter the head of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in Winchester, have kept up one of the hottest debates known to church history, and have in the meantime come as near calling each other "you're another" as ardent religionists ever could be expected to come to that grand culminating point. The members of the two churches have expressed the deepest interest throughout, and as there is to be no decision, the friends of Brother Brooks unanimously agree that he is victor, while the friends of Brother Fitch just as unanimously agree that Methodism has triumphed in Winchester in the person of Brother Fitch. At times during the debate there was even a stamping of feet after the manner of applause, and now and then a ferrent "amen" would come up from the depths of some good soul. Scarce a sentence passed the lips of either divine that was not taken up and turned inside out and over and across in the way of criticism by a good portion of the audience, and even the two innocent reporters came in for a share of public opinion. The gentleman of the press from Cincinnati was believed to be in league with Mr. Fitch, as he was seen to pass that gentleman a note one afternoon, and the representative of the press from Louisville was urged entirely too young for the business. But the debate is over now, and everybody is willing to wait for it in book form. The passage of carriage and saddle-horses has ceased, and the tireless church bell has stilled its portentous clangor. No more tall gentlemen from the country go riding by with long strings of spider-web floating out from their hat rims on the way to town; no more pedestrians go stumping over the rocky roads; no more of anything pertaining to the debate is visible outside. A funeral bell was tolling yesterday—some one had gone out over the narrow way which had been the subject of the great discussion; some one perhaps now knows which was right and which was wrong.

MATERIAL WITNESS.

HUDSON.

The Ex-"Railway King" in His Old Days.

The following letter from George Hudson, once the "Railway King" of England, to Mr. Hugh Taylor, of Hexham, is published in the Newcastle Chronicle:

CALAIS, August 10, 1859.

MY DEAR MR. TAYLOR—As the subscription which you kindly originated is now closed, it becomes my duty as well as my pleasure to express to you, and through you, to the numerous friends who have so handsomely contributed towards it, how hardly tell how I can, in adequate terms, express my gratitude for their recognition of my services in the promotion of public works. I assure you that I am deeply unskilful to you and the other gentlemen who have been associated with you for furthering the subscription for my sanuity; and to the large number of friends in Newcastle and Sunderland, as well as in other places, who have so handsomely responded to your appeal, and have thus secured for my remaining days a comfortable competency, I shall ever retain with pride and satisfaction on my connection with your district. The knowledge that I was enabled to assist in giving to the town of Newcastle its High Level Bridge, to sunderland its docks, and by a system of combination of your railroads to restore the productiveness of many which were lost so, and extending the system of railway to Scotland, is a great pleasure and fully compensates me for any suffering I may have endured. I cannot conclude my letter without publicly expressing my deep obligations to Mr. Elliot, who, during all my misfortunes has been to me a most kind and considerate friend, and who also so warmly assisted you in the promotion of the subscription. Allow me again, my dear Mr. Taylor, to express to you my warmest thanks for all your kindness, which can never be effaced from my recollection. I am, yours, very truly, GEORGE HUDSON.

SUGAR.

Its Prospects in Louisiana.

[From the N. O. Times.]

Persons recently from the coast give rather unfavorable accounts of the appearance and prospects of the cane crop. They represent that the crop is very backward, especially the ratioons, and that the grinding will be unusually late, which exposes the cane to all the contingencies of the uncertain weather of our autumns and early winters. This condition of the cane is ascribed to the lack of diligent and thorough culture, under our present system of labor. The late spring and summer demanded more than even the usual tillage to promote the growth and vigor of the stalks. It is impossible for the planters of sixty-five the power and control over their laborers in their present condition of independence upon wages labor. They are compelled to submit to the loose system now prevalent on the plantations, to overlook many serious delinquencies, or suffer any crop at all. But it is obvious that, without competition, they cannot make a full crop either of sugar or cotton on our fertile lands. If there be good reason for the introduction of a new and better system of labor, or indeed of any labor which will supply that great need of all successful production—competition. At present the negroes have everything their own way, and the planters have to submit and do the best they can. The whole world, including the negroes themselves, are interested in changing this condition of our agriculture.

THE IMPENDING.

A Picturesque Description of Its Peculiarities.

[From the London (Eng.) Standard.]

We delight in the old-fashioned sturdy unflinching Democrat. He is the sovereign who has controlled with such singular success the destinies of this great country during the whole of her fortunate existence—the last decade being excepted from the happy era. Familiar with the traditions of its party, he draws from them its cardinal principles, and advocates those that are still pertinent, heartily and fearlessly. Such doctrines as have accomplished their mission or are no longer fitted for modern uses he lays aside as the ancient jewels of the party to be paraded rarely even as curious ornaments and kept under political revolution shall develop other, more fit for present uses. His devotion to truth, the embodiment of which he is in his political theory, he reveals at every time, regarding it as a sacrifice of principle on an unholy altar, the incense from which best ascends the political atmosphere until the sacrificer pay stumble on desolation. This consistent, "unterrified" democrat, minus, earnest Democrat, is a man "after our own heart."

But occasionally grim exaggerations of this excellent individual are seen, and the object of their creation is not altogether obvious. If correct, they serve possibly they do a service number of people in both at locomotives, their eminent utility is compounded. Persons who have never stepped more effectually and certainly more safely in other ways; as Radicalism may be checked more surely and speedily by other means than those of impracticable Democrats is questionably demonstrated. If, in fact, only such, or two or three years, progressive, and thinking of comrades, open his eyes to the fact that they have drifted, and push forward with the same force that they have been pushing backward, they go, we could avoid many a rough campaign. In fact, if to-day the Democracy supplied, solely on the long Democratic platform of '98 would pour in by millions, casual sailing, and thrust among the "wool-dyed" who demand the purging of every sentiment or admission in the party do that much to wards mantling its reputation. The Democracy is no longer a monarch enthroned, dispensing favors where she will, and condemning where she will; but a subsidiary seeking proselytes, and too many are yet unwilling to recognize such.

Indeed, the impenetrable Democrat, of our own State at least, overlooks some other facts equally important. He assumes that Kentucky alone cannot cope with the Radical party, and is the same man who shouted triumphantly after the last Gubernatorial election, "the country's deliverance from a bleeding!" His nerve feels sure he is right unless he differs with the Republicans totally and in the smallest details. Such a man is to be feared. If first reached by his enemy, seems hateful. Now this plan of firing at the enemy behind a barrier of sentiment appears easy and attractive, but not always practicable. This sort of a Democrat is not unlike the opposite, the pioneer Radical, in his total absence of any side issue. He knows no question. In everything relating to Coffee he sees a "stepping stone" to negro equality, and from fruit trees to political platforms, has no question in equality judicial, he is ready to "read out" of the party anybody who refuses to see, as he does, the absolute identity which he is in his political theory, he recognizes no compromise, no "fusion," (if it is

The strike among the miners at Port Henry, N. J., still continues. Frequent attacks are made upon the workmen employed upon the Erie railroad bed. Several men have been severely beaten for working against the orders of the mob. Danger to life and property is imminent.

The first appointment made by Gov. Walker, of Virginia, was Capt. Wm. E. Cameron, editor of the Petersburg Index, as his secretary. Capt. Cameron was an officer in the Confederate army, and one of the first and most determined supporters of the Walker Republican ticket in the late campaign.

A Havana letter says Henry S. Koopers, a British subject, and for many years connected with the New York Herald Bureau in Havana, was arrested Wednesday night and confined in the city prison, and Lot Moro or Los Cabannos. The cause of his arrest is unknown but supposed to have some relation with his connection with the Herald.

The New York Journal of Commerce learns from a gentleman who is in a position to know what is going on among the Cuban revolutionists, that Gen. The coroner's jury in the case of the accident at Athens, Pa., on Monday, censures C. Means, conductor of the way train, for disobedience of orders, and John Rabis, train dispatcher at Towanda, for running a fast train a few minutes after a slow one. Rabis ignored that Means has been arrested, but the officers of the road are very reticent in giving details.

A dispatch from St. Paul, Minn., says that after two dry and pleasant days, a heavy thunder storm occurred Sunday night, putting the grain in shock back to its former wet condition. The river is again rising, and is now sixteen feet above low water mark, a stage unprecedented at this season within the memory of the oldest inhabitants. The booms of Martin & Co. and Keene & Co., at Anoka, have been carried out and millions of feet of logs swept into the stream.

The following information has been received from Jones county, N. C., which joins Lenoir, where the arrests of eighteen members of the Kuklux were recently made. A few evenings since, Mr. David Green, a respectable citizen of Jones county, while crossing Chinquepin creek, seven miles from Trento and less than a mile from his residence, on his way home, was fired at by a party of men concealed in the undergrowth. Eleven buckshot took effect, seven in his left side and two in his head. He was taken up shortly after he was shot and carried into a house near by, where, at last accounts, he was dying. As Green was a Democrat it is supposed that members of the Loyal League attempted his assassination.

☞ We understand that Bob Latham has closed his connection with the Quincy Mills, in this city, and will remove to Chicago about the first of September and take charge of an extensive flouring mill there. Bob has been connected for a long time with the flouring mills of Quincy, and his reputation as a number one miller is not excelled by any one connected with that branch of the trade here, and the reputation of the "brand" of any establishment that may secure his services will not suffer thereby.

Messrs. Smith & Bryan, of the Broadway Mills, have secured the services of Mr. Latham, and propose to furnish to the trade or to families in Louisville as good (if not better) flour, as can be had in this or any other city.

☞ Fourth-street residences are the most popular of all others, and one of the handsomest on the street is that of J. Sues, to be sold this evening by Pearson & Meddis.

☞ Don't fail to attend Buckel & Shaffer's auction sale of 12 building lots, situated on Bank and Lytle streets, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth, and opposite the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, this (Wednesday) afternoon at three o'clock.

To Country Merchants and Druggists.

We call the especial attention of the country merchants and druggists now in the city purchasing their fall stocks to the advertisements of Dr. Wintersmith's valuable proprietary medicines. THE GREAT CARAVAN.

The Grand Procession To-day.

The Forests and Jungles of the Orient in our Midst.

On this day a monstrous and unique cavalcade will pass through our city. One would imagine the King of Dahomey or of Siam was paying Mayor Bunce an official visit, to see this procession. The following are the distinguished personages of the cavalcade:

THE ONE-HORNED

Rhinoceros Unicornus Niger, from the forests and swamps of Caffreland, a near relative to the Roundheads of ancient times, who set up a stone idol called Plymouth Rock, against which all persons addicted to unseemly levity were ground to dust. The points in which he resembles his ancestors of the Protectorate is in being thick-skinned and abstemious, never having but one "horn" on board.

HIS NIBS OF THE PREHENSILE NOSE.

Next a monster elephant, larger, probably, than any other animal on the continent. His age is incalculable. He is probably the identical elephant that Confucius thought of as a type of immensity. The Theban Colossus set up by Francis I., in the capital of France, was doubtless modeled after him. A baby elephant, eighteen months old, accompanies him.

FELINE MATERNITY.

A lioness and her babies, two little cubs seven weeks old, are of the party. They spin around like a top in quest of their tails, purr like little kittens, show their teeth and play with their mother's moustaches, and are altogether most delightful infants.

A LAUGHING HYENA.

That jovial individual, whose resonant guffaw awakens the night's stillness of the forests of Barbary is of the party. He is an exceedingly unprepossessing individual, though possessing an open countenance. He is one of those uncanny creatures who would breakfast off his own father rather than go hungry.

A TROOP OF CAMELS

is also of the party, and adds picturesqueness to the procession. They are richly caparisoned, and if one could shut his eyes to outside sights and sounds, he would imagine that the annual procession to the Holy Shrine at Mecca was passing before him. Ten of these "ships of the desert" and a pair of elephants, all richly caparisoned, draw the Oriental Music Car, containing Wither's Cornet Band.

THE OTHER VISITORS

from another continent are made up of an almost endless train of bears, tigers, lions, yaks, cougars, panthers, and all the rare beasts and birds of the earth—cassowaries, ostriches, macaws and all the ornithological wonders of Australian forests, besides troops of apes and monkeys. All this procession is what? you ask. It is the Great Caravan of Geo. F. Bailey & Co., which exhibits here this week, connected with which is one of the finest companies of equestrians and acrobatic performers on the continent. It will fill two great apartments under one canvas, and represents a capital of over one million of dollars. As a special attraction, they have with them the only specimen of the hippopotamus in this country, and one of but three or four specimens in the universe outside of African rivers. This is the largest of all amphibious animals, being second only in size to the Asiatic elephant, and none should fail to see it.

At New Albany and Jeffersonville yesterday and the day previous immense crowds were in attendance at each performance, and we hear but one opinion expressed from every quarter, to-wit, that Bailey's Menagerie and Circus is the "best and biggest thing on wheels" in the United States.

The following will be the route of the procession this morning: From the lot down Walnut to Second, thence to Main; down Main to Sixth; out Sixth to Market; up Market to Third; out Third to Jefferson; down Jefferson to Sixth; out Sixth to Chestnut; up Chestnut to First, thence to Walnut and thence to the lot.

Remember it will exhibit on the lot, corner of East and Walnut streets, every afternoon and evening this week and no longer.

A SAD AFFAIR.

An Unsuccessful Attempt to Obtain Subjects From St. Louis Cemetery.

THE PARTIES ARE ARRESTED.

Three bodies were taken from their graves in St. Louis cemetery about midnight, between Monday and Tuesday, and carried a quarter of a mile from the place of disinterment. The parties were arrested in the act by the sexton and an assistant, brought to town and put in jail. The facts as elicited at the trial in the Police Court yesterday morning were substantially as follows:

About half past twelve or one o'clock the sexton, Mr. Hart, was aroused by the barking and restlessness of his dog. Getting up he found the dog running back and forth from the house to the gate in great distress. On going out the animal started toward the grave-yard. Suspecting what was the matter, he returned and waked up his assistants, and, arming themselves, the party started for the grave-yard proper. On the way they noticed a grave with some of the dirt removed and the headboard misplaced. Reaching the fence they found a horse attached to a small spring wagon in which lay two bodies, one in a sack and the other lying in the bright moonlight perfectly nude. It was the body of a girl. There was no one near, and Mr. Hart and his companions hid themselves in the fence corner to await developments. Presently they heard some persons approaching and looking down the ravine saw two men bearing on their shoulders a third body. When they arrived at the wagon the sexton and his assistant rushed on them, pistols in hands, and being unarmed the men surrendered. The bodies were carried back into the cemetery and the parties brought to the city and given over to the police authorities. Some officers of the police force returned with the sexton examined the locality, and found that the graves of three persons buried the day before had been opened and the bodies exhumed. These were the same which were found in the wagon. One was a girl about sixteen years of age, named Mary Velquers, of a French family. Her father was in court yesterday morning, and could scarcely give his evidence for the grief which overcame him. Another was a young woman about nineteen years of age, named Alice Atwell, who was buried from the hospital. The third was the body of an old lady about seventy-five years of age. They were all reburied at once by Mr. Hart and the officers.

The two parties whose names are Rothwell and Berryhere were arraigned in the City Court yesterday morning and required to give bond in $400 each, to answer any indictment which the grand jury may find against them. A felony warrant was then taken out by officer Green, charging them with rifling the dead bodies of their clothing. This proceeding brought the friends of the deceased persons in o court which might have been spared by avoiding this useless suit.

We are conscious of the difficulties which beset the surgeons in their efforts to supply a sufficient number of subjects for dissection, and we wish, in the interest of science, that we could ignore this unfortunate occurrence. But it is quite impossible. The proceedings before the City Court yesterday and the publications made in the afternoon papers created universal discussion. We can only say that a prudent justice would enjoin upon the public very great moderation.

"SIGNS."

A Few Timely Suggestions to Our Business Men.

As a general thing sign-boards indicate the business of a city. Where you find them dingy and illy-hung, and "few and far between," you say to yourself "this doesn't look prosperous." Well, advertisements are sign-boards.

The St. Louis Republican is full of them, ergo, St. Louis is prosperous. Ditto with the Chicago Tribune, which comes to us overflowing with announcements. Louisville seems to be the exception that proves the rule. Business is uncommon flush here. This month is said to be the most fruitful our merchants have ever known. Last week the city was crowded with strangers from every part of the country. Yet there was little or no advertising done.

The fact is curious. It ought to be suggestive. To the stranger it is not of propitious augury, for strangers look at advertising columns for business hints.

The circular system and drumming system may have their advantages; but they must, in the nature of things, be limited, for they are addressed to classes chiefly. The newspaper goes everywhere. It has been built up at a cost of years of labor and money devoted to its perfection. When the trader seeks its assistance in reaching the public he pays according to the number of readers reached. It is more expensive to publish a paper that goes to a large audience than it is to publish one that goes to a small audience. Hence the New York Herald charges double as much for advertising as the lesser New York papers.

Advertisers do not always understand this. They think sometimes, without reflecting, that the price of advertising should be uniform. One might as well expect uniformity between the prices charged by leading hotels and private boarding-houses.

It costs $5,000 a week, cash, to run the Courier-Journal. This enables us to make a paper which circulates over a dozen States. We could publish a paper for $1,000 a week, but it would not be read out of Louisville, nor by one-half or one-third of the people in Louisville. As it is we afford a universal medium of communication, and, though our advertising rates are necessarily higher than they would be if we were spending less, they are not so high as the rates in St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati.

The balance of the present season will see Louisville crowded with people. The Southern country has money to spend. The Commercial Convention will bring great numbers of them here. A better opportunity for Louisville could not be gained, and we hope for the sake of our commerce, as well as for our own sake, that it will not go unimproved.

Counterfeiting.

Capt. J. P. Roberts, Deputy U. S. Marshal, arrived from Laurel county yesterday with a man named James Dempsey, who is accused of being a counterfeiter. Dempsey appeared in London, Ky., last Thursday afternoon, and bought some whisky from the bar-keeper giving him three fifty cent currency notes which were afterwards found to be counterfeit. Dempsey became drunk and laid down in the street. The Deputy Marshal then arrested him on suspicion and found twenty-four twenty-five cent currency notes and a number of ten cent silver coins, all counterfeit, on his person. The man lives in Whitley county, and is said to have a bad reputation. He will be tried before the U. S. Court.

Our dispatches this morning do not relieve the suspense of the Republican officials in Kentucky. The agony is by no means over yet. The "ultras" and the "moderados" cannot mix, and the "ultras" are determined they shall not mix. Speed, Needham & Co. are to walk the plank, and when they are disposed of we can say without much fear of overstraining, "good evening, Republicanism in Kentucky."

A damage suit, in which the plaintiff gained $37, created no little excitement in Justice Stephens' Court on Monday. It seems that some time ago Harvey Smith, well known here during the war as the "Old Quartermaster," and now an overseer at the dam, maltreated a little boy there named Samuel Black, and pushed him into the river. The boy's father, who works on the dam, brought suit, which terminated as above.

There is, perhaps, not in the whole of Goldsmith's Animated Nature, a more peculiar animal than a gray horse that takes it in his head to make a fool of himself. Yesterday one of them, hitched to a spring wagon, concluded to tumble down on Third street, which he proceeded to do, and lay there for some time under the impression that he was dead, and did not know any better, until the harness was peeled off of him and his owner gave him a kick in the ribs, when, suddenly convinced that he was still alive, he sprung to his feet as well and hearty as he ever was in his life. On being hitched up again, he walked off with the cheerfulness of his best days.

WIFE MURDER.

Its Operation in Laurel County.

A man named Wm. Chapman, who lives near London, Laurel county, Kentucky, killed his wife last Thursday. The facts as we have them from Mr. N. B. Jones, who arrived from there yesterday, are about as follows: A son of the murdered woman stated on the trial that his father and mother had been quarrelling that morning. That the father got on his horse to go to town on some business. His wife said something to him when he got down from his horse again, came into the house, slapped and kicked her, and then dragged her into an adjoining room. He then returned, and getting on his horse, started off. His daughter, who had not returned from the milking, called to him to come back that her mother was dying. His only answer was "ugh," and he rode off. He was tried before the County Judge and held in $5,000 bail to answer. He is a poor man who is represented as always quarrelling with his wife or she with him. The affair created a great deal of excitement in the community.

Kentucky School of Medicine.

Dr. Clinton W. Kelly, Professor of Anatomy in this institution, will deliver his introductory lecture this morning. Subject—"The Heart."

Dr. Kelly has recently returned from Europe, where he studied under the supervision of the most distinguished teachers in Berlin, Heidelburg, and Paris, the recognized centers of the old world. Before visiting Europe Professor Kelly graduated at the McGill Medical College, in Canada, at which institution he was fortunate enough to receive all the prizes upon the first and final examinations, a feat, the accomplishment of which was without a parallel in the history of medical teaching in those possessions. Dr. Kelly is a native of this State, and his extensive circle of relatives and acquaintances will contemplate with just pride the additional honors that will accrue to him from his connection with this well-known and time-honored medical school. The medical profession and medical students are invited to be present at the lecture to-day, at 10½ o'clock, in the north wing of Weisiger Block, on Fourth street, between Green and Walnut.

The Regatta.

Very general interest is manifested in the boat races that will take place in front of this city on Friday. Among the entries are the names of Hamill, Wolfe, historical in boating circles, and the more modern champions and aspirants, Haley and Mulholland. The citizens have taken the matter in hand, and fine sport is anticipated. It is but lately that Louisville has shown an interest in boating, and the coming races will give increased impetus to that manly exercise. There was a meeting of the different boat clubs last evening, and the premiums were arranged and the prizes agreed upon. Friday morning a full programme for the day will be published. In the meantime it is hoped our public-spirited citizens will contribute to the prizes. Books are opened at German & Bros., Fred Wolfe's, 37 Market street, and Charley Kreamer's, on Fourth street.

Desperate Assault.

Last night about eight o'clock, a man by the name of Jacob Ohr, who keeps a green grocery and butcher store on the south side of Green, between Preston and Jackson, became offended at a man (whose name we do not know, but who sells wash-blue about town, and occupies a room in Mr. Philip Tomppert, Jr.'s, house) because of his spitting out of the window, and went to his room, where he beat him unmercifully over the head with an iron instrument, inflicting three severe wounds, and afterward dragged him down several staircases, badly bruising him in the side. The wounded man was attended by Drs. Kellar, Lavielle and Gilpin, and afterward taken to the hospital. Ohr was arrested, but subsequently released on giving bail at the Clay-street station-house.

Grand Base Ball Match Game.

The members of the Kentucky, Eagle, Falls City and Atlantic clubs, of this place, together with the Buckeye Club, of Cincinnati, have determined to give a complimentary benefit to Messrs. Crooks and Meagher, of the Kentucky Club, at Cedar Hill, next Friday. They are both deserving men and excellent ball players. The game will be between picked nines of the above clubs, and, from the names of the players, we judge the game will be the best and most exciting played here this season.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died on Sunday, Sept. 19th, 1869, at his residence in the city of New York, M. Bamberger, Esq., in his fifty-eighth year.

He has been called to render up his spirit to Him who gave, who createth and who destroyeth. Truly a good man has passed away—of amiable disposition, moral and religious character, he gained the love, esteem, and respect of all who knew him. He was born in Weilersbach, Kingdom Bavaria, in the year 1811. In his twenty-fifth year, 1836, he emigrated to this country and settled in New York, who shared with him his present wife in New York, [illegible] Shortly after his marriage he removed to Wilsonville, Spencer county, Ky., where he engaged in a mercantile pursuit on a small scale and with limited means. He remained there until the spring of 1844, when he removed to the city of Louisville. Through his indefatigable efforts he rejoiced to see the constant increase of his business, which grew larger and larger from year to year that he had to remove to New York to extend it, for the purchasing, and at the hour of his sudden death his established house stands, and a great deal through his integrity and upright dealing, as one of the largest wholesale houses in the West. He was an earnest and faithful guardian of her interests. When he had money to invest he preferred to invest it where it would redound to the advancement and prosperity of the city which had witnessed the struggles of his youth, the successes of his manhood, and the prosperity of his old age.

His hand and heart were always open, and liberally did he assist the poor and needy. He was ever ready to aid the friendless [illegible] who needed them, and his true charitable acts were dispensed with a true paternal feeling. Peace to his memory!
